

2024

Ethereal Plan

Ramsceair Jacques Flemmings

Follow this and additional works at: <https://commons.library.stonybrook.edu/writingbeyondtheprison>

Part of the African American Studies Commons, Africana Studies Commons, Poetry Commons, and the Religious Thought, Theology and Philosophy of Religion Commons

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-Noncommercial-Share Alike 3.0 License.

Recommended Citation

Flemmings, Ramsceair Jacques, "Ethereal Plan" (2024). Writing Beyond the Prison. 64.
<https://commons.library.stonybrook.edu/writingbeyondtheprison/64>

This Book is brought to you for free and open access by Academic Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in Writing Beyond the Prison by an authorized administrator of Academic Commons. For more information, please contact mona.ramonetti@stonybrook.edu, hu.wang.2@stonybrook.edu.

Flemmings, Ramsceair Jacques, “Ethereal Plan”

I remember the whispers I heard throughout the day,
Voices I could hear, but their languages were not known to me.
Deep within my ethereal core, I yearned to understand.
At the location in time it was not meant to be.

I desired it with intense impatience in my heart.
My dreams began to escape me before I would awaken;
As the bright star shined during the morning, so did my need;
Through prophetic tomes I searched for answers to my curse.

But their interpretations would not be revealed in that way.
Being tormented by this, I submissively dropped to my knees.
When the moon arose my eyes reopened, so I could decipher the plan,
It was written in Aramaic. This is it, said my soul:

“Foundations upon foundations why do many lead to the dark,
Where foolishness deceives those who are deeply forsaken,
Marked by a brand for the soulless to come and forever feed?”
Then a voice said, “Now, go report these sayings of old to the Earth.”

Genre: Poetry

Tags: Religion; Prophecy