1988

Ange Leccia: Deplaned Ontology

Tricia Collins

Richard Milazzo

Follow this and additional works at: https://commons.library.stonybrook.edu/differentia

Recommended Citation
Available at: https://commons.library.stonybrook.edu/differentia/vol2/iss1/33

This document is brought to you for free and open access by Academic Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in Differentia: Review of Italian Thought by an authorized editor of Academic Commons. For more information, please contact mona.ramonetti@stonybrook.edu.
Ange Leccia: Deplaned Ontology

Tricia Collins and Richard Milazzo

The operative principle in Ange Leccia’s work is manifestly exten­sional and inversely functional: it issues world as social construct, subject to arrangement and rearrangement, assertion and negation. It is subject, generally speaking, to a kind of social and historical trans-syntaxing. The reality-blocks are, in turn, overdetermined by sublation. Ontology deplanes. In Leccia, efficacy somehow separates and distinguishes itself from the darkness of power; in effect, dark power is sublated, as if in a cartoon, by the power of darkness. Blocks of reality are literally stacked, reversed, overextended and deprivileged. In the world of the hyper-Spectacle, the “dark powers” of information and consumption emit the irradiated glow of the institutional Sublime. In Leccia’s work, extension is not merely the outcome of rhetorical dialectics limited to presentation, display and representa­tion, which are further limited to the confines of the gallery and the gallery-as-store, and by necessity to the internal dynamics of commodification; it is bracketed by global transaction and transcen­dental stasis.